“ There is a sacredness in tears. They are not the mark of weakness, but of power. They speak more eloquently than ten thousand tongues. They are the messengers of overwhelming grief, of deep contrition, and of unspeakable love.... Carroll, you will be missed

“ For the bigger part of my teen years I had Carroll in my life. I loved his good natured soul, I will never forget how much of a friend I had in him. I want to send my best wishes to his mother for the grief she is feeling to be easy on her.

“ This breaks my heart all over again. I'm sorry we lost touch and I never knew how to get in touch. I love you today as I loved you then. you were and always will be one of my little brothers. I put a yellow candle for you in memory of Paula too.. I go to see your dad and her and I carry you and your mom in my heart always. Y'all have always been my 2nd family. So many years have past and im so proud you grew into a handsome man and did well. I love you and I know God has you with Paula and your dad. Little Carroll I wish I could turn back time and give you the biggest hug I could give anyone. I love you with all of my heart and I will talk to you in my prayers now. God has another Wonderful Angel im so glad you were a part of my life here on earth. I'll carry you in my heart, my thoughts, and my Prayers. Til we meet again. Love you... Charlene

“ I was one of the many in my LPN class who had Carroll as a patient in 1981. I think of him every time I go past Oak Forest, and tried so many times to find him on FB and Google. It saddened me to learn of his passing, and send my most sincere condolences to Joanne and family. I smile when I think of the day when we moved (heaven forbid) Janet into his room since they were around the same age. I don't think there was a quiet moment in the room after that! Nurses have a handful of patients we never forget, and Carroll will always be at the top of my list.
