“ Though shadows fall where once you stood,
Your laughter lingers in the wood—
In golden hours and quiet grace,
Your spirit lights this earthly place. The stories shared, the joy we knew,
The steady hand that saw us through—
These gifts remain, undimmed by time,
A beacon bright, a love sublime. You’ve stepped ahead into the blue,
Where skies are wide and dreams come true.
No bitter end, but sweet release—
A soul set free to soar in peace. I’ll carry you in every smile,
In kindness shown, in mile by mile.
For friends like you don’t truly part—
You live forever in my heart. Rest well, dear one. Your light goes on.

“Ernie beat me down about how I have to try grilled lasagna. He took his grilling serious and loved it. He would brag about his doggies all the time. He had the biggest heart and would be there for anyone who needed help. He was very honest and cared more about doing what's right than cutting corners to make a buck. He knew his job so well and wanted his work to be perfect. I'll miss Ernie (Eekers) so much along with our lengthy conversations. He was a tremendous friend.

Love you brother!
